

X (Twitter) — 5-Day Posting Schedule

Based on Week 1 Content · Eastern Time (ET)

15 posts · 5 threads · Optimal timing for new civic/education accounts

WHY THESE TIMES — CT POSTING LOGIC

7:30–9:00am ET	Pre-work scroll window. Civic, legal, and community org staff check X before their day starts. Best for rights education hooks and strong single tweets.
12:00–1:30pm ET	Lunch break engagement peak. Threads and quote cards perform well — people have time to read and save. Good for emotional or philosophical content.
7:00–9:30pm ET	Evening peak for civic/news X. Highest retweet and share activity. Best for threads, weekend reminders, and dedication content.
Avoid	10am–12pm ET (people are in meetings). 3pm–6pm ET (afternoon productivity dip, lowest engagement). Weekend mornings (lower civic audience online).
Buffer Tip	Schedule all 15 posts in Buffer now using these exact times. Consistency trains the algorithm faster than sporadic high-quality posts.

DAY 2 — TUESDAY

Post Date: Tuesday

Theme: Rights Education — 5th Amendment

DAY 3 — WEDNESDAY

Post Date: Wednesday

Theme: Feature Spotlight — Evidence Vault

DAILY STRATEGY

Wednesday midweek is when tech and civic content peaks on X. The Evidence Vault is your strongest trust-building feature — lead with the privacy angle. The afternoon engagement post invites your audience into conversation, which signals growth to the algorithm.

8:30am ET

Single Tweet — Privacy Hook

DAY 4 — THURSDAY

Post Date: Thursday

Theme: Community + Dedication

DAILY STRATEGY

Thursday is when engagement-focused content performs best. Lead with community activation — ask people to share. The dedication tweet goes up in the evening when the audience is reflective and less likely to scroll past something quiet and weighty.

9:00am ET

Share Activation Tweet

TWEET

DAY 5 — FRIDAY

Post Date: Friday

Theme: Week Recap + Weekend Rights Reminder

DAILY STRATEGY

Friday posts on X serve two purposes: recap what you built this week for new followers who found you mid-week, and plant a weekend rights reminder that people save for real use. The evening post should be something shareable heading into the weekend when encounters and community events are more likely to happen.
